ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS

REWARD.

RANAWAY from the subscriber on the 29th of October last, a negro man slave named

B O B,

about 20 years of age, five feet nine inches high straight limbed and well formed; said slave has an impediment in his speech which prevents his readily replying to a question. He commonly wears ear-rings. He took with him a variety of good clothing, a description of which is unnecessary, as it is probable he has changed them. He has been frequently seen about town since he absconded, and in all probability is now secreted by his mother, Winney Brown, formerly the slave of Mr. John Mullis, late of this town, but now dead. The above reward will be paid for securing said Negro BOB, in any goal, and for the reward of TEN DOLLARS for the discovery of those who have been accessory to his escape.

Commands of vessels, &c. are forwarded at their peril, not to take him away.

CONGRESS
OF THE
UNITED STATES.
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.
Friday, January 6.
DEBATE

On Mr. Randolph's motion for the appointment of a committee of enquiry into the official conduct of SAMUEL CHASE.

(Mr. Nicholson's Speech continued.) It was said by a gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. R. Griswold) that we were about to appoint a committee to ransack the country for an accusation, and afterwards to search for proof to support it.
He complains that no accusation is made.
Mr. N. averred that an accusation was made; it was made during the last session, and again repeated during the present. He asked if it was no charge to declare that a judge had condemned a man to the most ignominious death, without a hearing; without allowing him these benefits which he claimed under the constitution? Was it a trival circumstance for a member of this House to declare that a freeman had been indicted for a high capital offence; that he appeared at the bar and pleaded not guilty; that his counsel were ready to prove the truth of the plea, but that the presiding judge had refused to hear them.
If this was not a charge and a charge too of a most solemn nature, he did not understand the meaning of the words. It was brought forward as boldly as the gentleman from Connecticut could wish, and the only question now was in what manner shall we enquire into the truth of it. Shall we appoint a committee to make the enquiry by calling witnesses before them, or shall we dismiss it without investigation? Shall we give it the go-bye and suffer the character of the judges to rest under an imputation so heavy? Shall we proclaim our own dishonor by publishing abroad that a heavy charge had been made in the face of this House against one of the highest judicial officers of the government, and that we were to pusillanimous to notice it?

What the gentleman meant by comparing the proposed committee to the Spanish inquisition, Mr. N. really did not understand. Did the gentleman wish to make a false impression upon the public mind?
Was he anxious to cast an odium upon the proceeding by calling it an inquisitorial committee, and affecting to believe that it was to be clothed with the powers of the holy inquisition? The inquisition had the power to seize the person of the party, to deny him all access to his friends, to confine him in a cell, and refuse him all assistance whatever; to stretch him on the wheel and rack and torture him into confession.
Does the gentleman wish to induce a belief that this committee is to be clothed with the same powers? All committees appointed to enquire, might, to be sure, be called inquisitorial, because they were to make enquiry; but the epithet of Spanish inquisition, was intended to convey an idea totally incorrect.

The gentleman had asked why this charge had been suffered to rest so long?
The facts upon which it was made, were said to have taken place in 1800. Mr.
N. thought it would be fair to reply to the gentleman, that possibly he himself had in some measure accounted for the delay, the proper time had not, perhaps, before arrived. But if the act upon which the charge was grounded was criminal at that day, was it less so now? If justice had slept so long, did it follow that she was dead? He hoped and trusted not. Tho' she had lain dormant till she was almost trampled to death, she was again roused to her accustomed vigilance, would pursue her victims and drag them to punishment.
The day of retribution he hoped was at hand.

The gentleman from Connecticut had declared that the proposed course was not warranted by precedent. He had noticed but not explained away, the precedents introduced by the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. Findley). His own precedent derived from the impeachment of Mr. Hastings, instead of being in his favor was directly against him. In that case it was not pretended that the proof was before the House of Commons. Mr.
Burke had derived his information from certain papers relative to Indian affairs which some years before had been produced and referred to a secret committee

In the year 1786, Mr. Burke rose in his place, not as a member of that committee, and charged Warren Hastings with high crimes and misdemeanors. About the time he presented a written paper containing a specification of these charges. But this was not the impeachment. The written paper stated that as governor general of Bengal, he had disobeyed the instructions of the court of directors; he had ac-knowledgeed himself perfectly acquainted with their wishes, but instead of obeying, had used his utmost endeavours to defeat them and much more of an important nature. This he moved might be referred to a committee of the whole House in order that an enquiry might be made, and there was not a single dissenting voice. He did not induce the proof in the first instance, but stated his opinions that Mr. Hastings's conduct had been criminal and demanded enquiry. The Commons of England did not hesitate—they instantly resolved to enquire. No one was heard to declare that there was no charge, because there was no proof. Witnesses were brought to the bar and examined by a committee of the whole in support of the charges, nor was there a motion to impeach until the testimony was gone through. On the contrary the facts proved were reported by the committee of the whole, who likewise expressed an opinion that Warren Hastings had been guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors, and ought to be impeached. The impeachment therefore was not upon the motion of Mr. Burke, but upon the report of a committee who under the instruction of the House had made an enquiry.

From the Charleston Courier.

IT is an old saying that "by the falling out of rogues honest men often come by their own." It were to be wished that the word often could with truth be made always; but unfortunately it cannot.— Sometimes rogues will fall out about an object of their rapacity, and after some struggle find it their interest to come to a composition and make a division of the spoil.
Sometimes the weaker in the contest will from sheer zeal in the cause of villainy give up the stronger rather than let the honest owner come by his property. And sometimes they will tear the object of their cupidity in pieces, and render it not worth possessing. Which of those may turn out to be the case in the upshot of things in this country, it would be folly to prognosticate. But according to all appearance we rather think that some one of them will happen, and that the honest are little likely to come by their own.

We must be understood to make use of this old proverb, not as thinking it capable of accurate verbal application to the persons of whom we are about to speak. We assume it merely as illustrative of the business in which they are engaged. The difference between pecuniary and political fraud is generally understood; and though they differ in fact, and unfortunately still more in estimation, one may in some cases be brought into illustrate the other. We are far from being of opinion that the moral turpitude of the latter is less than that of the former. If the turpitude of an act were to be measured by the extent of the mischief it produces, unquestionably the guilt of the highwayman is less than that of the dishonest statesman. A family or two may in hunger deplore for a few days the mischief done by the former; the crimes of the latter blasts the happiness of nations, and will be felt and deplored by generations not in existence at the time they are committed. With this disparity, which in the scale of truth weighs all against the statesman, a powerful being blows its breath into the other scale, and makes the puny spirator of individual property kick the beam.
Fashion, that wonder working sorceress whose spells have the power of counteracting the operations of nature, reason, justice and truth, will it that while the ragged ruffian who plunders a house or picks a pocket in the agonies of want, shall be hanged with infamy, the aspiring political knave shall sit under canopies of state, and dressed in purple and fine linen, receive the homage of the very community he plun-ders. What wretch that ever expiated his crimes on a gibbet in London or Paris, was a more wicked mean swindler than the late King of Prussia; yet his dignity never moulded a feather for his frauds. What man ever committed more crimes of all dies and descriptions, from petty larceny up to enormous human butchery, than the very monster to whom a vile multitude of mankind at this instant look up with stupid admiration, and regard, while the wise and the good cast their eyes to the earth from him in fear and trembling: as if villainy were inexcusable except it reached to the ruin of millions.

One might with equal hopes of success, attempt to rise Mount Atlas from its base with a knitting needle, as to encounter fashionable prejudices with reason. Therefore the house-breaker, the highwayman, and the pick-pocket, however high they may be hanged, will in the estimation of men continue to be low villains; and the dishonest, corrupt statesman, however low his tricks, will continue to be high even unto the end of the chapter.

After this fashionable qualification of the terms which we may use in the course of the discussion, we hope to be acquitted of meaning to apply the words alluded to in any way affrontful to the persons concerned. And we beg to be understood when we say fraud, as meaning nothing more than political management more dexterous, more cunning, and successful, than just.
The word rogue bears many meanings:
Johnson defines it to be a dishonest man, a wandering beggar, a vagabond, a name of slight tenderness and amusement, or a wag. Now in using the word we have a right to give it any of those meanings which we choose, and that right we give up to our readers: those of them who are gratefully imbued with French principles and attachments, will probably take it a la mode Francoise, in the most favorable interpretation it will bear. Let them suppose then, if they please, that I mean to clobber those to whom I apply it, with tenderness and endearment, or laugh with them as wags—just as it may suit the subject and their own fancy to set it down.

The foregoing reflections have often occurred to us in the course of our political observations; but are more irresistibly impressed upon us by the dissensions which have of late prevailed at New York. The two great men of the Union, once warm friends and partners in political traffic, have fallen out; and whether it be, that like Cesar and Pompey, one cannot bear an equal, nor the other a superior; or that like many other partners, they have traded so successfully that they are grown too proud of each other, and each wants to have his name first in the firm, so it is that they have parted, and are now scuffling hard about a division of their stock in trade—the people. In the conflicts arising about this division, temper has unfortunately got the better of prudence, and they are e-letting out certain anecdotes of tricks secretly practised during the full tide of their trade, which will impair their character for integrity, injure their credit, and perhaps let in some whom they have wronged, into a full discovery of their deceptions.
In short they have already entered on the combat, and we are likely soon to have before us, not a bloody but a dirty arena.— Whether it will end in the bursting of this bubble or of that, is yet to be determined.
While the combatants struggle however, and the spectators gaze at them and at the dirty arena with curiosity or interest, we may point to Jonathan, as the shrewd pretended fool to the old rich gentleman in the stage-coach and cry "Nuncie pags off."

The combatants to whom we allude are the Jeffersonian and Burrish factions who at New York are cutting and slashing each other to pieces. The Jeffersonians accuse the Burrites of joining with the Federalists.
On the other hand the Burrites accuse Mr. Jefferson himself of violating all the principles of government and constitutional law by personal interference in and active exertion to influence the election of Governor of that State. The latter is a dangerous thing, and shall be hereafter discussed.

Messrs. Yundt and Brown, By giving the following observations on the method of curing clover hay a place in your Gazette, you will oblige several of your subscribers, who are anxiously waiting to see them made public, in order to obtain themselves the process.

FROM THE YORK RECORDER.
A method for preserving Clover Hay, and improving the flavor and quality of Straw.
In a day or two after your Hay is cut, when only about half dried, let it be taken in and picked with alternate layers of straw; give to each layer of clover four or five half pints of salt, or more in proportion to the quantity of hay; three pints to the hundred weight will prevent the fermentation, or excessive heat, which injures and moulds it. By not drying the hay as much as is common, and putting it as above mentioned, it imparts to the straw a flavor much of the quality of clover, and cattle eat on it as greedily as the other.

ment or hoghead, giving a pound of salt to every hundred weight. By preferring it in this way you will have a beautiful green hay, exceedingly fragrant and nourishing, and superior to any other fodder, especially for milch cows.
It is not more expensive than the usual mode of mowing and drying hay, as the same number of cows will eat and pack it, without the risk of having it damaged by rain, which too frequently happens from unavoidable delays. This process is certainly worth attention, and more so from our eastern farmers who are in the habit of exporting this article to the West India markets.

How to improve impoverish land.

Put in two successive crops of buckwheat, and when in bloom, plow them down; this may be done in one season, and in the fall sow your wheat or rye, and you cannot fail of having a promising crop of grain the next year.

FRIDAY, MAY 18.

Important.

From the (Philadelphia) TRUE AMERICAN, of the 16th instant.

By the politeness of Captain Calvert of the ship Maria, arrived last night from Cadiz, we were favored with a copy of the following important letter from Commodore Preble to John Gavino, Esquire, our Consul.

United States Frigate Constitution, Syracuse Harbour, Feb. 7, 1804.

JOHN GAVINO, Esq.

Consul of the United States.

DEAR SIR,

I have the pleasure to announce to you the pleasing intelligence of the capture and destruction of the Tripoline frigate of 40 guns, late the United States frigate Philadelphia, by the United States ketch Intrepid, of 4 guns and 70 men, commanded by Captain Decatur, of the Enterprise, who volunteered his services on the occasion. It is to be regretted that she was so situated, that it was impossible to bring her out.

On the night of the 3d January, the brig Syren, capt. Stuart, and ketch Intri-pid of 4 guns, fitted for the purpose, and commanded by captain Decatur, with seventy volunteers, from the squadron, sailed for Tripoli, with orders to burn the frigate in that harbor. They this day returned, having executed my orders much to my satisfaction.

On the night of the 16th ult. capt. Decatur, entered the harbour of Tripoli, with the ketch, laid her along side the frigate, and in a gallant and officer-like manner, boarded and carried her against all opposition. After gaining complete possession, he proceeded to fire her with success, and left her in a blaze, in which she continued until she was totally consumed. He had none killed and only one wounded. The Tripolitans had between 20 and 30 men killed on the deck. One large boat load made their escape, some men ran below and perished in the flames; but the greater part jumped overboard. She was moored close to the batteries, with all her guns loaded, and two of their corsairs, full of men, lay within half musket shot of her.
A fire was kept upon the ketch by the Batteries, Bashaw's Castle and Corsairs. Not a musket or pistol was fired by our men, every thing was settled by the sword.

The Syren anchored without the harbour to cover the retreat of the Ketch, and sent her boats to assist, but unfortunately they did not arrive in season, as the business was accomplished, and the Ketch on her way out, before the boats met her. Had they got in sooner, it is probable some of the Tripolitan Corsairs would have shared the fate of the frigate.

Very respectfully, I am,

Dear sir,

Your obedient servant,

EDWARD PREBLE.

Captain Calvert, informs, that a demand had been made of the Tripolitan Government, by the Emperor of Russia, for the enlargement of the crew of the Philadelphia frigate.

The fast sailing ship Frances Henrietta, capt. Goodrich, arrived at New York on Sunday last, in 37 days from Amsterdam, brings papers from that city to the 30th March, which furnish Paris dates to the 29th of the same month. These papers are principally filled with details of discoveries, connected with the late conspiracy.

Messrs. Drake and Spencer Smith, his Britanic Majesty's Envoys at Munich and Strutgard, are charged, with having been concerned in the plot; a private correspondence between Mr. Drake and Mr. D. L. has been discovered by the French government, and the instructions which D. L. received were laid before an extraordinary convocation of the Conservative Senate on the 23d of March, by the Grand Judge.
It does not appear by the papers received that Moreau had been tried and convicted as stated in the English prints. Russia having promised protection to the Republic of the Seven Islands, contemplates sending troops to the Mediterranean by way of the Black sea, but as they do not seem necessary at present in that Republic, the movement has given the French a pretext for sending troops to Naples, where they have demanded as a security that three of the ports and several ships of war should be given up to them. Very little is said about the invasion, it does not appear, however, to be relinquished, and several movements among the shipping, in the French and Dutch ports, has excited more than the usual attention of the English fleets.

It also appears from these papers under date of Paris, March 22--That with the consent of the Elector of Baden, the Duke of Enghien, Louis Antoine Henri of Bourbon, youngest son of the Prince of Conde, was seized by a French officer, in the night, at Ettenheim, on his own estate, and in his own Palace, charged with being concerned in the late conspiracy, and carried to Paris; where, within a few days after his arrival he was tried before a sanguinary tribunal composed of eight officers, without a jury or counsel allowed him in his defence, and condemned. No account of his execution has been received as yet, but there can be no reason to suppose that Bonaparte will spare his life. A late English print speaking of this event, has the following remarks.

"Thus by a Corsican Tyrant and Usurper will be cut off the last hope of the Great and Gallant House of Conde--a house that traces its ascent, in a long unbroken line, to the sixth son of St. Louis; a house that shines with such lustre in every page of French history, and of which Boileau says:

Conde dont le nom seul renverse des Murailles Abat des Escadrons, et gaigne des Batailles.

What must be the feelings of the aged Prince de Conde, in his dignified retirement at Wanstead House! His hope, his name, his race destroyed, root and branch, in one moment! It is to be hoped religion has brought him consolation, under the many misfortunes that have been accumulated upon his reverend head. Yet, little did he think, little did the other French Princes think, when they were celebrating Easter day with him in their Chapel here, that the prayer for those in trouble, in bondage and in affliction, embraced one of the dearest, as well as one of the most honorable of their relatives.

It is curious to contemplate the events that are brought about by a change and reverse of fortune. The castle of Vincennes is now the prison of Moreau. In that very castle was sentenced to death a Prince who had been opposed to Moreau last war; who followed and harassed him in his celebrated retreat, and whose cavalry afforded the most efficacious protection to the Austrians when Moreau once or twice paused in his retreat to beat back the Austrian advanced guard. The Duke d'Eng-hein's military talents gained the respect of Moreau, who always spoke of him in the highest terms.

Fifteen French emigrants have been also seized by the Emissaries of France, at Offenbourg, and 15 at Stratsburg, in the Electorate of Baden. A party was detached in hopes of finding Dumourier at Ettenheim, where he had been a short time before with the French Princes, but missed him. Thus are the territories of neutrals violated by tyrants, and the unfortunate emigrants torn from their comfortable retreats, where they had been innocently passing their days, to be sacrificed to the will of a merciless usurper."

Captain Goodrich informs that the transports had hauled down to Nieu-Diep, and were, in readiness to receive troops for the expedition against England, which it was thought would not much longer be delayed.

The following paragraph, under the Paris head of March 16, exhibits the opinion the French wish to entertain of the cause of the King of England's late indisposition.

PARIS, March 16.

Extract of a letter from London dated, February 28.

His Majesty is quite recovered in an extraordinary manner. Dr. Willis came in with a person dressed in the uniform of a French general, and told his majesty that it was Bonaparte made prisoner; it had its desired effect, so powerful is the name of Bonaparte!"

The following is a copy of a communication issued by captain Bainbridge, a few days after the loss of the frigate. It is directed to the First Lieutenant.

SIR,

The late unfortunate event prevents the midshipmen from receiving that information in their profession, which they otherwise would have derived; and that the distressing time spent here may not be entirely lost to them you will inform them, that it is my request that immediately after breakfast, they will repair to their room to study navigation, and read such books, as in our possession, which will improve their minds.

Given in a prison in Tripoli, Barbary, November 5.

(Signed)

WILLIAM BAINBRIDGE.

LT. PORTER.

INVASION OF ENGLAND.

Extract from "Reflections on the Invasion of England," stated to have been published at Paris by order of Bonaparte.

My opinion is, that after the reduction of London, the French should not advance farther; but that they should without delay propose a capitulation, holding this language:

"We shall not destroy London, nor throw rubbish or ballast into the river, to choak up its port, if you forthwith agree to the following articles:

"These articles will naturally present themselves to our consideration; but the English government probably will not capitulate. Secretly contemplating the possibility of such a catastrophe, it has some time since formed its determination, which is, to transfer the seat of empire to Bengal, and at Calcutta to establish the London of the Indies. They will embark 60,000 troops, and their whole fleet will convey them. In this speculation it is, perhaps, that they have collected, near Plymouth, a force of 40,000 men, to serve in case of necessity, to cover such an embarkation. It is my opinion that the government of England will carry such a plan into execution immediately after the fall of London!!

"In this Anglo Indian empire the government may be powerful. It will form a state on principles entirely new, and will find recruits in the many enthusiasts and adventurers who will follow it from Europe. But India will be governed with more lenity when the seat of empire is placed in her own bosom. The remaining part of Hindostan will be easily subjugated --The Cape of Good Hope and the colonies on the western coast of Africa will furnish an empire in that part of the world. Thro' the medium of Botany Bay it will dominate the southern hemisphere. Canada will supply the means of keeping up its naval force. The government thus situated may yet be powerful: It will command a great part of the seas; but it will at least be banned from Europe!

"All the English royalists would accompany and follow their government.
Those whose fortunes consist in bank paper will undoubtedly depart with the government, and in India be indemnified for their losses, it is certain however, that the south of Asia would be, under providence, a powerful engine in effecting the civilization of the universe.

"But the better, the greater, and especially the republican part of the English nation, would accept the capitulation offered by the French--or emigrate to North America, or to Louisiana.

"The present war, very far from being unfortunate, has already produced results favorable to the happiness of mankind. By it the United States of America have obtained Louisiana."

For the Alexandria Daily Advertiser. Genealogical Traits of Character--from a Legendary Book of Heraldry.

In this performance we have an enlarged account of Military Chivalry of modern date, and a general account of the performers, in which we read of military looking men, officers of merit, some of no merit, some understanding something, and a great many nothing, some marching in time, others out of time, some trotting, others stepping, and a few pacing as natural as an old pop-tailed corporation mare; but in page 104 is described a fussy man of three hundred dollars a year, instead of ten, who formerly took lodgings at a certain Joe Goat's, who lives in house 8 feet square, and 4 feet 6 inches pitch. Joe, it is said, once suffered the penalties of the law for receiving stolen goods, but yet possesses influence when recommending his friends:

From Maryland a lad came o'er,
His stockings old, his breeches tore;
His reputation had no flaw, We call him Monsieur Nong Tong Paw.
Although in such a tattered plight,
At Vernon's Mount he got a fight; Permitted for to feed the flocks,
And clean, and comb, and card the Jacks;
With Slaves provision for to draw, Well done, for Monsieur Nong Tong Paw.
He frequent took his trips to town, Put in his pocket half a crown;
His saddle was a bag of straw,
A gog, a hoop, was Nong Tong Paw.
Imagination all about,
He lodgings takes with Joseph Goat; Did with him take a cup-- And stay'd to breakfast, dine and sup;
At this Joe's neighbor's clearly saw,
And cryed, bravo! M. Nong Tong Paw.
It is by numbers now declared,
His nag was kept in Joe's back yard;
From morn till night, and night till morn, But neither fed with oats or corn, Nor even with a sheaf of straw,
The noble, generous, Nong Tong Paw.
Now if Joe had a generous mind,
And was to gratitude inclined;
If he'd march'd before the ranks,
And interest had at Col. F--k's, And in his zeal to save a friend To Col. F--k did recommend;
That Monsieur might some specie draw, Why who can blame, poor Nong Tong Paw.

VALUABLE FAMILY MEDICINES.

Just received direct from the Patenters, and for sale by

JAMES KENNEDY, JUN. DRUGGIST:

The following Valuable Medicines Dr. Rawson's Anti-Bilious and Stomach Bitters.

Prepared by THOS. H. RAWSON, Member of the Connecticut Medical Society.

THESE Bitters have undoubtedly had the most rapid sale of any Patent Medicine ever before discovered, and are justly appreciated for their singular and uncommon virtues for restoring weak and decayed constitutions, and all that train of complicated complaints so common in the spring and fall seasons, such as intermittent Fevers, Agues, long Autumnal Fevers, Dysenteries, &c. They are also a very pleasant Bitter for common use, and where they are known they have taken the place and superseded the use of all other Bitters in private houses as well as in the public families. Price 50 cents a box.

Dr. Lee's (Windham) Bilious Pills.

THE great sale and increasing demand for these valuable Pills for these 12 years past, bear witness to their intrinsic worth. They have proved singularly efficacious in Bilious and Yellow Fevers, Jaundice, Head Aches, Dysenteries, Bilious Cholera, Colic, &c. They are also a very pleasant Bitter for common use, and where they are known they have taken the place and superseded the use of all other Bitters in private houses as well as in the public families. Price 50 cents a box.

The very great demand and high esteem in which these Pills are held throughout the United States and the West Indies, has induced several to counterfeit them; the purchaser is requested to observe that the name of Saml. Lee, Jun. (the patentee) is affixed to each bill of directions, in his own hand writing, or they will not be genuine. Price 50 cents a box.

Dr. Rawson's Itch Ointment.

A certain and safe application for that disagreeable complaint called the ITCH. Price 42 cents a box.

Dr. Rawson's Anti-Bilious Pills, or Family Physic.

The extraordinary celebrity these Pills have gained, the universal demand for them and esteem in which they are held by medical men of the first eminence, are sufficient testimonials of their intrinsic worth. In great colds and sudden attacks of disorders, an early use of these Pills often produces the happiest effects, and taken once in 3 or 10 days in cases of Indigestion, head-aches, dizziness, Pains in the stomach and bowels, dysenteries, diarrhoeas, droppings, &c. and a liberal use of my Anti-Bilious Bitters in the intermediate time has relieved patients almost to a miracle. Price 25 cts. a box.

Thompson's Aromatic Tooth Paste.

For the Scurvy in the Teeth and Gums, and for whitening and preserving the teeth. It like wife takes off all disagreeable smells from the breath which generally arises from scorbutic Gums and bad teeth. This paste is much in use, and highly esteemed by all those who value the preservation of their teeth, it may be applied at all times with the greatest safety. It is neatly put up in Pewter boxes with paper directions. Price 50 cts a box.

Dr. Rawson's Worm Powders.

A Medicine which for efficacy and safety in its operation stands unrivalled. The most authentic proofs and respectable authorities of its astonishing virtues, and surprising effects, in extreme and alarming cases of worms, may be seen at the place of sale. Price 50 cents a packet.

Dr. Cooley's Vegetable Elixir, Or Cough Drops.

For Coughs, Colds, Asthma, spitting of blood, and all diseases of the lungs. Its merits stand unrivalled. Price 50 cents a bottle.

Dr. Cooley's Rheumatic Pills,

Price 50 cents a box.

Hinkley's Infallible Remedy for the Piles.

Price 50 cents a box.

Very particular directions accompany each of these valuable medicines.

WHEREAS

The extraordinary losses by fire, which have taken place, particularly the late Fire at Norfolk, which is believed to have been more extensive and injurious than any one which has ever happened in America, and by the payment of which, and to comply with the acts of Incorporation of the Mutual Assurance Society against Fire on Buildings of the State of Virginia, it becomes necessary and expedient in the opinion of the Board of Directors of the said Society, to replenish the Funds, and that a reparation among the whole of the persons insured, previous to the twenty third day of February last, shall be made. That the Members of the said Society should pay their Quotas agreeably to the acts of the General Assembly, and the constitution, Rules and Regulations made in pursuance thereof. Each Individual whose property is insured as aforesaid is hereby notified and required to pay each his respective Quota; that is, the sum of one hundred dollars on every hundred dollars of his premium and tax on his respective buildings, and in that ratio; or in other words, a full Quota; to wit; the sum as expressed in each policy; which payment is to be made to the Cashier General of the said Society (Mr. William Weil) at Richmond, on or before the first day of August next.

The payment hereby required, when made, will reinstate the Funds again, according to the intention of the said acts and the principles of the institution; and it is no small consolation to say with truth that the society will thereby be enabled to meet any future accident as fully as if no loss had ever been sustained by it.

It is unnecessary to enlarge on the necessity of payment being made pointedly to the day. Prudence, justice and humanity, all calling loud for punctuality, particularly when it is recollected that the act of incorporation has the following clause:—"Whenever any person or persons shall neglect to pay such quotas, the assurance to him made shall cease and discontinue from the day on which they become due, until paid." In addition to which, compulsory means, may also be resorted to, which will be expensive to the insurers, and painful to the direction.

It is worthy the attention of all interested to recollect, that as the exact amount of every person's Quota, is stated in his policy, he can be at no loss to understand precisely the sum now called for by the present requisition.

ROBERT & JOHN GRAY

HAVE JUST RECEIVED

A large supply of Dr. Stoughton's GENUINE BITTERS,

THE happy effects, and superior efficacy of these bitters, can be testified by hundreds in Alexandria and its neighbourhood, during the prevailing sickness last summer. We believe that every person, who then perished in regularly taking them, resisted the attacks of the fever. They brace the constitution, create appetite, assist digestion, and relieve the cholera; in short, in all complaints of the stomach and bowels they have been proved to be eminently efficacious. Hence, they resist malignant fevers, and are a preventive to the ague. A course of these bitters, begun now, may prove highly beneficial, as they will gradually prepare the system to undergo the danger of a sickly summer.

There are many counterfeits. Purchasers will please to observe that the genuine Stoughton's Bitters are sealed with the first letter of the Doctor's surname, and full directions printed on each bottle. Tavern keepers and liquor stores, will find it to their advantage to use them, as from superior strength alone they may be considered to cost no more than the trash so often imposed upon them. They are also sold by Rapine, Conrad and Co. Capitol Hill, City of Washington; Mr. March, George Town, and Mr. A. Luck, Frederickburg. Also just received.

ESSENCE OF SPRUCE.

Beer made with this article, is well known to be the most wholesome and least expensive mixed beverage for the summer season.

Twenty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from Easter Monday, a Negro man called TOM BURDITT, a Blacksmith by trade: he is about 25 years of age, rather of a yellowish complexion, and has an ill countenance: he stole and carried off with him a young BAY MARE, Saddle and Bridle; the mare has a remarkable knot on one of her jaws, which was occasioned by a hurt when a colt, and shed all round: He wore away an oxbow suit, negro cotton jacket and pantaloons, with old shoes, and an old ragged hat: he also stole and carried away a pair of chain traces. Any person who will apprehend the said runaway, and secure him and the mare so that I get them again, shall receive the above reward, or a proportionate part for either. All masters of vessels and others are forewarned not to harbour or take him away at their peril, as I am determined to prosecute, in the utmost rigor of the law, any person who the fact can be fixed on.

Given under my hand in Prince William county, the 15th day of April, 1846.
